WAR DEPARTMENT.

SECRETARY OF WAR,

ROBERT T. LINCOLN.

CHIEF CLERK,

JOHN TWEEDALE.

LIBRARIAN,

DAVID FITZGERALD.

PREFATORIAL REMARKS.

The compiler begs leave to state the reasons that led him to select the present form of subject catalogue, first premising that his own predilection was in favor of a strictly dictionary or alphabetical index catalogue; but, after an experience of over three years in the War Department Library, he has found that nine out of every ten questions asked in reference to or concerning the contents of the Library were put in the following manner: "What have you on Fiction?" "What have you on Biography?" "What is there in the Library on Military Science?" or, "I would like to see what there is on Battles, Campaigns, Sieges, etc."

With this experience of the requirements of the patrons of the Library, it was thought that their wants would be better subserved by arranging each subject in such a manner that a few moments would suffice to show the contents of the Library on any desired subject. This, in a strictly dictionary catalogue, could not be so readily obtained without involving an amount of work which was out of the compiler's power to perform in connection with other duties.

On account of the fewness in number of the books in the Library on certain subjects, it was deemed advisable to combine several of these under one general heading, as "Fine Arts," "Literature," "Reference," etc.; but these smaller subjects each having its own subheading, and a table of contents having been added to the catalogue, it is thought that but little or no inconvenience will result therefrom.

It was also the aim of the compiler to so arrange the title of each book in the subject catalogue that it would really be a subheading of itself; but this method is not adopted in the arrangement of such subjects as "Fiction." Occasionally a book may seem misplaced in "Subjects," judging from its title, but the text of the book has been consulted in all such instances before final decision.

In the "Authors" portion of the catalogue, the title of each book is given, with few exceptions, as fully as it appears on the title-page; but in the "Subjects" portion the titles have been curtailed as much as possible, except in instances where the author's name could not be ascertained, when the title in "Subjects" is made to correspond to that given in "Authors."

Very few cross-references are made, and the name of the publisher, size of the book, and number of pages are omitted, their insertion not being thought of sufficient importance in so unpretending a work as this. Where the number of volumes is not stated, it will be understood that there is but one, and where the date or place of publication is not given in the catalogue none can be found in the book.

The compiler disclaims any pretensions to elaboration in this catalogue, his object being solely to furnish every facility for ascertaining the contents of the Library in general, or upon any particular subject, in as simple and easy a manner as possible, and he trusts that he has been successful.

Thanks are due to Mr. H. T. CROSBY, formerly Chief Clerk of the War Department, for the advice and suggestions given by him to the compiler; and similar thanks are due to the present Chief Clerk, Mr. JOHN TWEEDALE, who has always freely given assistance during the compilation of the catalogue, and has taken great interest in its preparation.

The appendix contains a list of additions made to the Library during the preparation and publication of the catalogue.
